Henry II.

[illegible]

Henry II. King of England
A.D. 1154 - 89.

THIS VOLUME contains an intensely interesting original charter granted by Henry II, which is probably quite unique from the fact that amongst other signatories occurs the name of Thomas à Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, and to which he has annexed his sign manual. Included in the volume are facsimiles of three charters of Henry II. extracted from the work on National Manuscripts published by the Ordnance Survey Office. It will be noted that none of them are inscribed with any autograph mark of the signatories. Autographically inscribed documents of this period are of extraordinary rarity, as it was the custom for a scribe to write out the matter and also fill in the names of the witnesses himself; that being considered sufficient, as the custom of signing was not practised till long after in the reign of Richard II. The present document is of the very greatest interest as it bears the autograph mark of one of the most famous personages in early English history. It is undated but is approximately between the years 1155 and 1162 A.D.

Saint Thomas à Becket

THOMAS, known as Thomas à Becket, 1118 ? - 1170, Archbishop of Canterbury; son of Gilbert Becket of a Norman family of Knights; portreeve of London; educated at Merton Priory, London, and Paris; became a notary; entered the service of Archbishop Theobald; accompanied him to Rome 1143; driven away by the jealousy of Roger of Pont l'Evêque; accompanied Theobald to the Council of Rheims 1148; prevented the coronation of King Stephen's son Eustace 1152; archdeacon of Canterbury 1154; Chancellor 1155, in which capacity he co-operated with Henry II. in his policy, an extraordinary intimacy growing up between them; ambassador to France to propose marriage between Henry II's eldest son and Louis XII's daughter, where his magnificence made a great impression; supported Henry's expedition against Toulouse 1159, when he performed great military services; became unwillingly Archbishop of Canterbury 1162, and refused to remain Chancellor. At a Council at Woodstock successfully opposed Henry II. (the first case of such opposition in English History) 1163; prohibited marriage of Henry III's brother, William of Anjou to the Countess of Walerand; summoned to Clarendon to account for various sums of money, on which occasion he appeared holding his cross, appealed to Pope Alexander III. and being refused a safe conduct, fled secretly to Louis VII. of France; resided at Pontigny and Sens while Henry confiscated the property of his See and banished his friends, to which he replied with threats of excommunication 1166; suspended Archbishop Roger and all those who had taken part in the coronation of the young Prince Henry; returned to England, Henry II. having promised amends for the violation of his rights; excommunicated all those in possession of his estates; was murdered by Hugh de Morville, William de Tracy, Reginald Fitzurse, Richard le Breton and others in Canterbury Cathedral, 29th December 1170; his shrine becoming the most famous in all Christendom and Henry doing public penance at his tomb 1174. The shrine was broken up 1538, and St. Thomas was ordered to be styled "Bishop Becket" and all images of him destroyed.

H

Charter of Henry II. King of England

CONFORMING to the regular canons "de Plaissicio" (Plaising) all the churches, alms, etc., granted to them by Richard, Richard, and Philip Bishops of Bayeux and others, the names of the churches etc., being given in detail.

WITNESSES: Arnulph, Bishop of Lisieux; Philip, Bishop of Bayeux; Robert,

Bishop of Lincoln; Thomas, the Chancellor (Thomas à Becket); Richard de Hummaz (Constable) dated at York (1155 - 1162).

THIS DOCUMENT has remained a family possession of the Beaumonts for centuries and was till recently in the possession of the Baroness Beaumont of Carlton Towers, Yorkshire. Her ancestor Robert de Beaumont came over with William the Conqueror, and was the first knight to break through the English palisade at the battle near Hastings.

(Original in Latin.)

Henry, King of England, Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, and Earl of Anjou, to the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Earls, Barons, Justiciars, Sheriffs, Foresters, and all his Ministers and liege men of England, French and English. Greeting. Know all that we have granted, and by this our present Charter confirmed, to God and the nuns of Wikes, for the health of ourself and our family, the same Church of Wikes, to hold therein an order of nuns. And two carucates of land in demesne and seven villeins in the same vill of Wikes, with the garden and all the estate which lies around the said church, and which belonged to Walter Maskerel, and his brother Alexander, and his sister Edith, and Walter the Dean, their father. And a third part of the vill of Wikes with all its appurtenances, whereof Aeliz, the wife of Alexander de Watham, was endowed, as witness the Charters of the aforesaid Alexander and his Lord, William fitz Robert. And ten solidates of land in the vill of Fratinges which Alwin Wereward and Godhugo held, in like manner as Walter Maskerel and his brother Alexander gave and granted the same to them. And the Church of Chatelham, as witness the Charter of Adam Clerk, and Richard and Matilda his wife, daughter of the said Adam, and all the land which Adam Clerk held in our manor of Huntlesham, with all its appurtenances, to wit, in mills, waters, ways, paths, meadows, pastures, and all other things rendering yearly sixteen shillings for all secular service and demands. And the land which belonged to Haldene to hold of soc and hundred, rendering two shillings and fivepence halfpenny for all service and secular exaction. And five acres of essarts in Tolleshunte and liberty of essart up to one hundred acres in Essex wherever God shall award them. And if any one shall wish to sell or bestow in alms any portion of his wood upon them, let no one of our bailiffs presume to thwart him. Moreover we grant them two greyhounds and four braches to take hares throughout the whole of our forest in Essex; and we will that the said nuns and their men be free of woodwaste and dereward of foresters, and from lawing of dogs, and from all pleas and plaints of forest, and that they may have free ingress and egress throughout our forest for carrying and bearing whatever God shall award them. We grant also and confirm to them all gifts which have been or shall be conferred upon them throughout our kingdom in lands, vills, churches, men, rents, services, reliefs, woods, brakes, commons, marshes, salt pits, turbarys, mills, pools, waters, fish ponds, fisheries, ways, and paths within cities, boroughs, and vills and without, in wood and open, in all places and all things; and we will that all their tenements and possessions and their men be released, free and quit of all pleas and plaints, summons, suits of shire and hundred, hustings, portmannemote, hallemote, all amercement of counties, hundreds, and forest, aids of sheriffs, foresters, and their bailiffs, army service, murder, theft, geld, danegeld, horngeld, bloodwite, gaiwite, ferdwite, leirwite, hengwite, flemenewite, fihtwite, wardpenny, averpenny, tithingpenny, forstal, grithbreche, hamsoke, thieffare, works of castles, walls, ditches, causeways, bridges, and parks, carucage, hidage, carriage, pontage, passage, paage, lastage, stallage, pannage, toll, all secular service and demand, aid, amercement, tallage, and of all forfeit and secular custom. We will and grant that they have liberty of their court, with soc and sac, tol and team, and infangenethef, and that they have all the issues which may accrue from all the above written grants. We command also by our royal authority that they have firm peace and liberty of all their goods carried by land or water, and that they shall not be placed in plea as to their lands or tenements, unless before us or our chief justice, and that they be as free and quit as any vassals of religious houses are throughout our land. Moreover we charge you, upon pain of forfeiture of ten pounds, that ye do full justice without delay to the aforesaid nuns upon all those throughout our land who shall do violence or wrong to them, their men or their possessions, and upon all claims which they shall make before you, so that it shall not need them to make complaint to us for fault of justice.
